Military

Your dedication and service in the military has equipped you with transferrable skills that are in high demand in the apartment industry. Many of our member companies offer “bridge” training that makes entering the industry seamless and rewarding. Discipline, tenacity and a strong mental mindset will create numerous career options.

Four-Year Universities & Technical Colleges

Employers today value individuals that enjoy learning and use their skills and abilities to solve problems, communicate effectively and think critically in a way that increases innovation and enhances bottom line performance. Whether you have a liberal arts degree or represent a highly technical field, there are numerous opportunities for you to apply your degree in the apartment industry.

Workforce & Community- based Organizations

Ready for a change and wondering how you can use your experience to find more meaning in a rewarding career? The apartment industry values those individuals who enjoy new challenges by using customer service skills, fundamental business management principles, and a positive mindset.

High School

Individuals with a high school diploma and positive motivation can enter the apartment industry immediately after graduation. Experience in a student organization such as SkillsUSA, FBLA, DECA, or ROTC is an added plus. Consider the apartment industry as an opportunity to apply team building, leadership and communication strategies on day one.
