THE TIME IS RIGHT.

The apartment housing industry is thriving like never before.

And so is NAA. We've experienced a phenomenal boost in our growth and influence. Our members have played a key role in the evolution of apartment living from a temporary housing choice to a preferred lifestyle for one-third of all Americans.

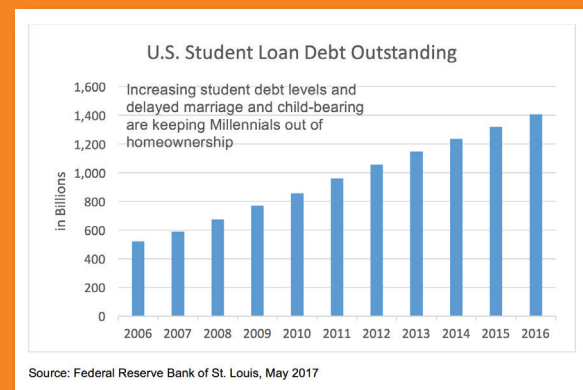

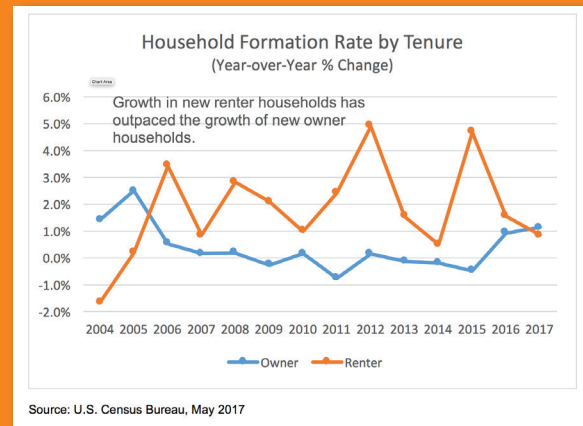

What do the numbers show?

The national apartment industry has boomed in recent years. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, a staggering 6.9 million new renter households emerged between 2009 and 2016, while the number of owner households remained stagnant during the same period. Consequently, the homeownership rate has steadily dropped from a high of 69.2 percent in fourth quarter 2004 to 63.6 percent in first quarter 2017.

The industry will likely retain its status as a growing and profitable industry thanks to an aging population, immigration, and declining home purchases. Looking ahead, the nation will need 4.6 million new apartments by 2030, meaning an average of at least 325,000 new apartments every year; however, just 244,000 apartments were delivered between 2012 and 2016.

Hundreds of thousands of new units will be needed by 2030 in states such as California, Georgia, Arizona, Florida, North Carolina, Nevada, New York, Texas, Virginia and Washington.
